Glyphosate should not be allowed in our drinking water and if banning it prevents that, than that's what needs to happen to keep our drinking water safe. Period. What we do to our water today can have serious, drastic effects on future generations. We have to see past the capitalistic bottom line for unborn fetuses that presently don't even have a voice. If there's even the slightest chance something can be harmful, it should be prohibited/removed from public availability. Consumers trust manufactures TOO much. How can corporations/human beings be so uncaring. Is there no conscientiousness in American boardrooms? Being portrayed as poisoners doesnt bother them? What about the health of their wives, children, grandchildren, great grandchildren, etc? Don't they think of them?! It will ripple down their bloodlines too.

Truly,

L. Webber
